

Sustainable Development in Sweden

Contributed by Megan Williams
Wednesday, 22 August 2007
Last Updated Saturday, 13 October 2007

Steve Henry a Central Otago based sustainability advisor talked about his recent visit to Sweden where he was learning about sustainability actions there.

He outlined development and actions within two communities from Sweden. Actions are a long way ahead of NZ, particularly in collaboration between business, community and local government. Innovative community solutions around energy, waste and transport were outlined. To listen to the evenings talk, (lecture 40 mins, discussion 33mins)

- {enclose Sustdevt_SwedenSteveHenry.WMA} to this podcast (Windows media player is needed)